HOW THE SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION DETERMINES WHO IS DISABLED

The Social Security Administration (SSA) uses a five step process to decide who qualifies for SSA Disability payments. This column will explain that process. If a claimant is determined at any step not to meet that particular step's requirement, then the person's claim will be denied. These steps are summarized below. There are exceptions of course, but for purposes of a general overview, these are the broad outlines of the SSA's sequential disability evaluation process.

Step One - Is the claimant engaging in Substantial Gainful Activity? (SGA) The SSA determines if the claimant is working and the amount of income he is earning. In 2014, if a non-blind claimant is earning above $1070 per month or a blind claimant is earning over $1800 per month, then the SSA will presume he is capable of SGA and his claim will be denied at this step. In other words, if you are working and earning above SGA, no matter how sick you are, your claim will be denied. If the claimant is not earning SGA then the SSA goes to step two.

Step Two: Does the claimant have a medically determinable impairment that is "severe" or a combination of impairments that are "severe"? An impairment is considered severe if it significantly limits a person's ability to perform basic work activities. These impairments can be physical or mental impairments. If the person does not have a severe impairment then his claim is denied. If the claimant has a severe impairment then the SSA goes to step three.

Step Three: Does the claimant's impairment or combination of impairments meet or medically equal the criteria of the SSA's Listings of impairments? The SSA Listing's describe most major medical conditions and establish clinical findings and symptoms that must be met before the claimant will be determined to have met the Listing. The Listings also describe the length of time the impairment must have been in existence. If the claimant's impairments meet a Listing, then the claimant is determined to be disabled. If the claimant does not meet a Listing, then the SSA has to determine the claimant's "Residual Functional Capacity" (RFC). The RFC is the claimant's remaining ability to perform physical and mental work activities on a sustained basis despite the limitations imposed by the claimant's impairments.

Step Four: Does the claimant have the RFC to perform the requirements of his past relevant work? (work performed in the last 15 years) If the claimant has the RFC to do his past relevant work, then the claimant is not disabled. However if the claimant is unable to do any past relevant work, or does not have any past relevant work then the SSA moves on to Step 5.

Step Five: Can the claimant do any other work considering his RFC, age, education, and work experience? If the claimant is able to do some other type work, then the claimant is found to be not disabled. If the claimant is unable to any other type of work on a full time basis, then the claimant's disability claim will be approved.

Celebration of Life Lucy J. McLain

Memorial Reflections

God in his infinite wisdom and divine love called from our midst our loved one, Lucy J. McLain to eternal rest on Friday, September 19, 2014. She was born to Sam and Isabel Jones on June 17, 1935.

She was preceded in death by Larry and Harry Jones. She leaves to cherish her memory: her son, Robert Thaddius Mulder; daughters; Valarie Spruill and Patricia McNeill-Chambers; grandchildren, Donvejas Cook, Eureka McGhee-Grand, Latisha Sinclair, Robert Spruill II, James Spruill, Ishmael Muhammad, and Robert Mulder; a host of great grandchildren; brothers, Sam and Jessie Jones; a special niece, Jerelene Carter and numerous nieces, nephews, and other relatives.

Your LOVE never stopped.
Your CARING never ended.
You GAVE the gift of LIFE.
On which our WORLD depends.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The family of Lucy J. McLain would like to sincerely thank you for the strength of your words of sympathy and acts of kindness, your prayers, food, cards and the comfort you have given during our time of sorrow. We will cherish your friendship, support and the genuine love you showered upon us.

Cape Fear Valley Health Earns Heart Failure Quality Award

FAYETTEVILLE – Cape Fear Valley Health has earned a Get With The Guidelines – Heart Failure Silver Quality Achievement Award from the American Heart Association (AHA). The award is bestowed for quality improvement measures in regards to heart failure patients.

The measures include proper use of medications and aggressive risk-reduction therapies, such as cholesterol-lowering drugs, beta-blockers, ACE inhibitors, aspirin, diuretics and anticoagulants. Hospitals must also educate patients on how to manage their heart failure after discharge.

To quality for the award, a hospital must treat heart failure patients at an 85 percent compliance rate or higher to the AHA's standard level of care for 12 consecutive months. About 5.1 million people experience heart failure annually, according to the AHA. But it's not a fatal condition if managed properly.

Cape Fear Valley Heart & Vascular Center offers a full range of cardiovascular services, including cardiac surgery, cardiology, diagnostics, screenings and vascular services.

Kay stands up for middle class families. Kay Hagan puts North Carolina first.

- Improving education and investing in HBCUs
- Defending everyone's right to vote
- Protecting Social Security and Medicare
- Working to make health care more accessible
- Fighting for equal pay for equal work for women
- Pushing to raise the federal minimum wage

Early Voting starts October 23rd. Election Day is November 4th.
